

Emotional abuse is child abuse

Parents and caregivers, remember your behavior and word's directly affect your child's development. Unfortunately these negative effects are not recognized until early adulthood, which are more difficult to change. A pattern where exposure begins in childhood and a new cycle begins when they are teens and adults.

It's much easier to model positive behaviors, words and actions, and validate a child's feelings now rather than them trying to repair them in the future.

Choose your word's and behavior's wisely!

Call
National Child Abuse Hotline
1-800-422-4453

It's easier to build up a child now than to repair them as an adult.

Choose your word's and behavior's wisely!

DrSafety@proconsumersafety.com

